

Level 5 Learning and Development Consultant Business Partner.

This programme empowers both you and your organisation with the critical skills needed to shape and drive the Learning and Development (L&D) agenda within today's fast-paced business environment.

As organisations adapt to economic, technological, social, and environmental shifts - including the journey toward net zero carbon by 2050 - L&D professionals must be equipped to lead change, enhance performance, and align learning needs across individuals, teams, and the organisation's broader business strategy.

Who's it for?

This programme is designed for individuals who are responsible for ensuring that learning and development drives performance improvement across individuals, teams, and the wider organisation.

They will have the commercial acumen to align learning needs with strategic business objectives, acting as agents for change within their organisations. They will influence key stakeholders, make informed decisions, and provide recommendations that shape the L&D agenda.

Typical job roles for this apprenticeship include: L&D Business Partner, L&D Manager, and Organisational Development Business Partner.
